Hi, Neighbor

by Mac Rex Graham

This is Boy Scout Week. We are happy to salute Boy Scouts of Lemon Grove and wish them happiness and every success in their endeavors.

This is the forty-first anniversary of Scouting in America and it has been a great factor in building fine Americans—strong spiritually, mentally and physically.

Scouting is the perfect answer to problems of delinquency.

That Lemon Grove does not have Scout troops enough to take care of its youth is not due to the fact that boys will not be Scouts but that there are too few men who will not share their time with Scouting.

It is natural for boys to want to belong. They like fellows that have a common interest. They like to create. And they like a uniform.

Scouting has a program that appeals to boys because its fields are unlimited, its horizons are unbounded.

Every church, every service club and if necessary, every P.T.A. in Lemon Grove should be sponsoring a Scout Troop.

He who molds the character of our youth, molds the future of our Nation and that character must be strong in mind, body and soul.

Education is vital, but if it does not teach our youth to live with other people, "to do my duty to God and my Country," then it is not enough.

This week, and every week, we salute the Boy Scouts of America, and the Scouters who make Scouting possible.

Booklet Tells How to Survive Atomic Bomb

The booklet, "Survival Under Atomic Attack," was distributed through the schools to most homes in the Lemon Grove School District this week. Issued by the Office of Civil Defense, the pamphlet is an official U. S. Government publication.

Local teachers and administrators are trying to protect children by teaching them to act quickly and intelligently in case of attack, atomic or otherwise. Classes are approaching the matter from the angle of each child being prepared to help himself in case of any emergency.

Drills will be approached with an attitude similar to that used in fire drills, and every precaution will be taken to avoid emotional upset to children. Besides these drills, there will be classroom lessons based on the booklet, "Survival Under Atomic Attack," but geared down to the level of the younger children.

The booklet has been sent home for these reasons: (1) The schools want all parents to know what is being taught the children; (2) It is hoped the booklet will be studied and people will prepare themselves accordingly to its directions; and (3) The reading of the booklet will promote a feeling of security.

Everyone is urged to read this material carefully and to plan with the entire family the steps to be taken toward being prepared at home.

H. Baker Writes from Colombo

The Red Sea
January 29, 1951

Dear friends: The morning of January 20 we steamed along the coast of the beautiful island of Ceylon off the Southern tip of India.

Hundreds of native outrigger canoes dotted the surface of a perfectly calm sea, all engaged in fishing.

At 12 o'clock we arrived at Colombo, the capital of Ceylon. Here we disembarked about 500 passengers from Singapore, who were mostly Ceylonese.

The harbor is formed by large jetties. There are no wharves so we had to go ashore in water taxis. Colombo is a city of contrasts. The central business district is beautiful and clean. The strictly native district is filthy. Refuse litters the street, beggars are everywhere and persistant.

So called tourist guides and other dishonest characters will follow you persistantly. It was necessary for me to call on the police to get rid of them.

The merchants stand outside their shops and almost use force to get you inside. They are persistant and sharp traders. I will admit I was no match for them.

I had dinner at a Chinese restaurant; the food was good and cheap. A pot of tea was 3c American. You could get a good meal for about 35c.

There was an upper class wedding at the Oriental Hotel (the best in the city)) in the evening. I have never before seen a group of women with such beautiful dresses. The colors were truly gorgeous. Practicaly all of the gowns were of pure silk. The women have such grace of carriage or poise. Many of them would make wonderful models for artists. I am afraid American women would suffer by comparison. — Sincerely, Harold W. B. Baker.

Parent-Teacher Valentine Dance

The P.-T.A. will sponsor a Valentine Dance Friday evening, from 8:30 to 12:00, at Friendship Hall. This promises to be one of the most entertaining evenings for everyone. Toomire's four piece orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing and intermission show. Mr. Burkett will call for the square dancing, scheduled for early in the evening. Besides regular waltzes and foxtrots, several dance contests are to be held, along with a potato and lemon race.

The Monterey Heights group will sponsor a humorous fashion show, and some fine musical talent will entertain. This will include Jerry Milner and his electric guitar, Janace Jowett, vocal numbers, accompanied by Kathy Lou Pendergrass, Bobby Chappel and his accordian, Beverly Loper and Ava Winkler, duets, and the Tune Pickers, a barbershop quartet.

Delicious refreshments will be served by the ladies. Mrs. W. H. Mangels is general chairman for the dance, assisted by Mel Frailey, Mrs. S. K. Solleder, Mrs. Clyde Hardy, Mrs. R. C. Taylor, and other members of the Executive Board.

Make your plans now to attend this good-time dance and show. Teenagers will be admitted to join in the fun with their parents if they accompany them or some other adults to the ha

Pedestrians to be Allowed Use of Cross Walk

At the Chamber of Commerce board of directors' meeting Tuesday evening, E. R. Offenbecher, San Diego County traffic engineer, discussed local road conditions and traffic problems. Mr. Offenbecher stated that the Public Utilities Commission had recently approved the installation of a pedestrian crossing, across the railway tracks at Broadway, Imperial and Main. The County road department will reconstruct and maintain the crosswalk, the width of which will be 10 feet when the shrubs are moved back on each side of the present walk. The two feet each side of the tracks is the responsibility of the railway company with regards to fill and establishment of grade.

"Through" streets, additional stop signs, and blind corners, were discussed. The numerous and unsightly signs and posts at Broadway and Imperial were mentioned and it was stated that no signs should be placed within 758 feet from the center of Broadway and that any permanent advertising sign requires a yearly permit.

Mr. Offenbecher stated that a lack of sufficient funds in the maintenance budget precluded striping as many streets as the Board and residents desired but that main traffic or "through" streets could and should be striped. Provision is also made by law whereby property owners can pay the cost of stripe maintenance if they desire. Mr. Rice or Mr. Singer at the Lemon Grove office of the County Road Department will cooperate whenever possible.

The grading of roads to the full width of the curbs was discussed, and Mr. Offenbecher stated that a 24 foot width on a surfaced street or on an oiled road is the present county standard and it is adequate to carry the usual volume of traffic on county roads. If any particular road carries an unusually heavy volume of traffic (which must be proven by tests) plans will be made to widen such a street.

The portion of Central Avenue between Imperial and School Lane was mentioned and Mr. Offenbecher suggested that the Fire Commissioners contact the local County Road office for a special encroachment permit for

DREW PEARSON

Mistakes Not Rehashed

IT HAS BEEN the policy of the brass hats that military mistakes, no matter how glaring, are not to be rehashed after they are made. That perhaps is why even the files on northern military blunders in the Civil War still are secret.

That is also why our intelligence error in the Battle of the Bulge, which cost the lives of thousands of young men, still remains uninvestigated; with the general then in charge of U.S. intelligence being promoted to be No. 2 man in the central intelligence agency.

And that is also why the naval commanders responsible for shooting down and killing 400 U.S. and British paratroopers in the invasion of Sicily never were investigated.

American newspapermen, including this columnist, have written about these tragic errors. But no official investigation ever was made public.

Likewise suppressed may be the tragic Korean errors which cost us the greatest proportionate casualties in history and the greatest land-army defeat in history. Certainly they will not be published if Senator McCarthy has his way.

It was to shed light on some of these errors that this columnist published paraphrased excerpts from General MacArthur's cabled estimates of actual Chinese strength. These showed that while MacArthur was announcing more than 1,000,000 Chinese in Korea or on the border, and that "a bottomless well of Chinese manpower continues to flow into Korea," actually, only about 96,000 Chinese sent the 8th army on its headlong 120-mile retreat.

Errors of Command

There was a good reason why I used paraphrased official cables from MacArthur. If I had not, Senator McCarthy would have accused me of lying, or manufacturing the Chinese figures out of whole cloth.

Faced with the official texts, he could not very well accuse me of lying, so he accused me of permitting the deciphering of coded messages. This the Secretary of the Army denied.

McCarthy also implied that I had given secrets to the enemy. This was absurd on the face of it. The column in question dealt with Chinese military strength, and the Chinese obviously knew their own strength. Furthermore it was published on Dec. 30, one month after the 8th army's tragic retreat, and facts published after battle don't give much help to the enemy.

However, after a battle, the people whose sons are lost and whose country is injured are entitled to know the reasons for defeat. The reasons in this case were errors in command. They were not the fault of the troops on the field of battle.

The reasons for this particular defeat began at Wake Island, and go back in part to two factors—a brilliant, strong-minded general who knew exactly what he wanted, and a president not versed in military strategy who, as a former National Guard artillery captain, was dazzled by braid and brass.

The Big Risk

At Wake Island, General MacArthur proposed exactly what he later executed—a lightning dash by American troops up to the Manchurian border, a pause on the border only long enough to symbolize victory, then a march home by Christmas.

In talking to Truman, MacArthur even used the words "home by Christmas." He admitted that the Chinese might be provoked into attack. But he predicted they would not cross the Yalu river in force and confidently added that, if they did, he could take care of them.

MacArthur also argued that the North Korean guerrillas would be destroyed by the severe Korean winter, and that the South Korean army would be strong enough to protect its homeland without a large U.N. army.

President Truman was hesitant. He questioned the necessity of marching all the way to the Chinese border, also the wisdom of pulling American troops out too quickly.

MacArthur replied that "occupations are failures," that the execution of war prisoners is "foolish," and it would be best to leave Korea in the hands of Koreans.

Although Truman remained hesitant, he never gave MacArthur direct orders not to march to the border.

A stronger president, such as Franklin Roosevelt, probably would have argued MacArthur down. A stronger military adviser to the President might have done likewise. Time and again Churchill and Roosevelt, conferring with the generals, dominated military decisions in the last war. And although never published, it was astute Adm. Chester Nimitz, commander of the fleet in the Pacific, who managed to reverse MacArthur's plan to stage the first Philippine landing not Mindanao—where the Japs were prepared—but in the Gulf of Leyte.

Cheers for Air Forces

COULD ALL THE PEOPLE of this country have the privilege I had, that of seeing one of the nation's great air fields on which are based America's mighty bombing planes and of meeting many of the personnel of that field, it would remove from their minds, as it did from mine, much of the fear of the Red army.

Not only was it my privilege to see the number and size of the nation's great war birds, but I also had the opportunity of meeting and knowing, in an intimate way, many of the young men who composed their crews, the personnel that can and will provide protection for the American people from any attack a Red enemy may make.

It was the personnel of those crews that constituted the basis of my confidence in our safety, that removed the fear of any attack on the part of Stalin and his Red fofces. What that acquaintance did for me it would do for the vast majority of the American people, could they have the same opportunity I had. It was an inspiring experience.

It was not that I was told in facts and figures of the ability and competence of those young pilots, co-pilots, navigators, bombardiers, radar and radio officers, and gunners, for they told me nothing of that. There was in their conversations nothing of brag.

My guess would be that any tendency to brag on the part of any one of them would have meant a quick drop from the rolls of the strategic air command. Nor did their conversations provide me with any "forbidden" information as to what they were doing or as to where they had been through the day or night. I knew nothing of such details, or was told nothing. Of such things they're supposed not to talk, and no member of any crew with whom I was in contact did talk. It was only the "big brass," of whom I saw none, who are permitted to talk.

In fact it was the silence on the part of these young officers, on whom we depend for our safety, that added materially to the confidence I acquired in the ability to protect all America from any onslaughts of the Red forces. Today I am confident of their ability to do that job. Such are the men the "big brass" are depending upon for results, and their silence, on subjects on which silence was commanded, gave me added confidence in their ability to protect me, and all America.

The personnel of those crews were careful, thoughtful young men. I saw none I could consider a dare devil who would take chances of an air stunter at a county fair, or attempt a speed needed to win a hotly contested air race. Their job is to get the utmost from the mammoth machines they man, to make every gallon of gasoline count on the long flights called for to reach a target, to force their great and expensive machines—costing more than a million dollars each—to the highest possible altitude from which to drop their death laden bombs, out of reach of the fighter planes of the enemy.

Those things and the pin point dropping of their bombs on enemy targets are what they are taught, but the how of such teachings are forbidden subjects of which they did not talk, but I imbibed from mixing with them the strong impression that they had mastered their lessons, and had to do so if they were to hold their coveted places on the roster of the air command.

When the day comes the greater number of them will reach the targets to which they are assigned, and most of those who go will come back again, after dropping their bombs on that Red enemy. They are not just trained to fly, but to fly for a definite purpose, and I am confident of their ability to achieve that purpose.

The young men I met, and knew, at that one great air base, and the many hundreds of others like them stationed at the many bases of the strategic air command, represent the force that lies between the American people and that Red enemy they have so greatly feared. It is a force that is fully worthy of our confidence. We can confidently count upon the protection we so ardently seek. As I met and mixed with them, my fears disappeared, as would yours could you have the same privilege.

—o—

The President's plea for economy in our domestic expenditures and for other than war preparations would have merited applause, had he not included in the same paragraph a demand for expansion of old age pensions, socialized medicine, and other big spending projects. Evidently his recommendation of economy wes not meant to be taken seriously. Our hope is that congress will not provide the money for such increased expenditures and run the nation farther into debt at this time.

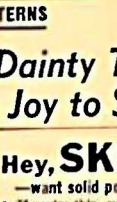
Rest Is Important, Says Housewife



It has been said that there are lots and lots of ways for people to try to get some sleep at night. Some folks paint their windows black, others use ear plugs to shut out noises, while others count sheep. All of these are good and they do help some folks get their rest, but Mrs. Frank Jones, 1220 Bell, Montgomery, Alabama, has the best way to get a fine night's rest. Mrs. Jones, who didn't rest well at night before she took HADACOL, is able to say, after taking HADACOL, "I rest wonderfully now!" Mrs. Jones found that HADACOL supplied Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron in which her system was deficient.

Here is Mrs. Jones' own statement: "For a long time I had been bothered with indigestion and sour stomach. Food didn't seem to agree with me. I always had that uneasy fullness after I ate. I got to where I didn't want to eat. I had no energy. Felt like I couldn't make it during the day. I also was very nervous. I didn't rest well at night. A friend of mine told me about HADACOL. After the fourth bottle I felt wonderful. My food agreed with me—no more indigestion or sour stomach. My appetite is terrific. I now have lots of energy and my nervousness has gone. I rest wonderfully now. In fact, I feel good all the way 'round. I recommend HADACOL to everybody—it's wonderful."

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied. —Adv.

Save Your Jobless Pay

By ROSS GRAHAM

Ed. Note: This is the fifth of a series of ten special articles.

Frauds against the California unemployment insurance fund do not constitute a major abuse, but they do help to deplete the fund which is steadily losing money, despite the record employment in the state during the last year.

Frauds play their part in setting up the condition where unemployment insurance benefits might be stopped entirely, or the employers forced to pay a higher tax on their payrolls to replenish the fund, or the employees themselves again being forced to contribute 1 percent or more of their pay checks toward the fund.

The employees have not paid into the unemployment insurance fund since May, 1946, when their 1 percent contribution was diverted to disability, or sickness insurance.

In 99 percent of the cases of fraud, the perpetrator is working at some job and collecting unemployment benefits at the same time. In some cases a worker quits or is laid off a job that comes under unemployment insurance. He or she applies for benefits and at the same time goes to work in agriculture or domestic service.

Prior to the latest Congressional amendment to the Social Security setup, no reports were made from these occupations as they did not come under unemployment insurance. Therefore, there were no records to show fraud to the Commission.

Now domestics are under unemployment insurance, but only if regularly employed and receiving $50 or more in wages from one employer in a calendar quarter, so there still is a loophole for frauds.

The only way to catch these frauds is for the Unemployment Insurance Commission to have investigation of claimants. This investigation is largely impossible, as the Commission has only 32 investigators for the entire state. Approximately 100,700 persons a week received unemployment or disability insurance payments during September, according to the Commission's report. Obviously 32 investigators could check but a small portion of this number.

Even so, the fraud investigators have done a remarkable good job, and when word gets around that the investigators are in the neighborhood, Commission records show the claims take a sharp drop, indicating that there is fraud going on.

Between July 1, 1949 and June 30, 1950, a total of 3,432 investigations were made, which resulted in 1,142 court convictions. In addition, many cases were of a petty nature and were settled by the Commission without court action.

As fraud is a felony, a prison or jail sentence is possible and the courts make the fraudulent claimants pay back the benefits wrongfully collected. In the petty cases, the Commission gets restitution. One of the common rackets is for the worker to have two or even more social security cards.

One case involved a waitress with two social security cards. She would work under one name, and card, long enough to establish wage credits, then file a claim, draw benefits and go to work under the second name and second social security card. She would be drawing wages in a new job while drawing unemployment payments for the old job.

This suggests the Federal government could well tighten up on the issuance of social security cards. Apparently all a person has to do is apply for the card under any name and is given without question, making such frauds as the foregoing possible.

A system of placing the thumb-print on social security cards, as is done on automobile drivers' licenses, with a penalty against a person who secures more than one social security card, might end this racket. But such a change would have to be made in Washington.

As said before, outright fraud is not so much a problem as the "voluntary quit" where the claimant uses all sorts of subterfuges to avoid getting a job, meanwhile drawing unemployment insurance.

But they all add up to the reason why the unemployment insurance fund in California will have paid out $2,000,000, approximately, more last year than it took in, according to the best estimates.

All kinds of illegal and improper payments to unemployment insurance chiselers of various sorts is estimated at the present time to amount to $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 a year at least.

If these rackets can be stopped, the money saved for the honestly unemployed workers of California will result in an increase in the unemployment reserve fund instead of a deficit, at least as long as the present full employment lasts.

But there are still other rackets that must be abolished if the fund is to be protected. The next installment will tell about the "lag quarter" situation, whereby a smart and unprincipled person can loaf on unemployment insurance a full year out of every 18 months.

Many Ways to Make Money Raising Rabbits

by JOHN M. M. WEAR, Jr.
Manager, Purina Research Farm

Operation of a rabbitry can be a highly profitable venture since there are eight distinct phases of the business. The initial investment is not too great and the extent of the activity can be adapted to a hobby for a teenage boy as well as to a full scale commercial operation.

Markets for rabbits and their products include the sale of rabbit meat, breeding stock, animals for laboratory use, pets, fur, wool and fertilizer. The individual can determine how successful and profitable raising rabbits can be through his own initiative, ability and aggressiveness.

During the meat rationing period, the demand for domestic rabbit meat automatically increased far beyond any previous record and many new outlets were established for rabbit meat as well as for breeding stock. Most of these markets can be retained and others opened by a continuous program of promotion and meeting the demand of the market for a regular or steady supply of rabbits.

The number of breeder rabbits and their young, one person can handle depends upon the climatic conditions of the area in which the rabitry is located, the kind of equipment used and its arrangement, whether the rabbits are marketed as live animals, dressed carcasses or carcasses cut into pieces and packaged.

Before making a decision upon the breed of rabbits to raise, the beginner will find it advantageous to make a thorough investigation of the markets for rabbit meat, skins, wool and animals for laboratory use and breeding purposes.

The prospective rabbit raiser will find it profitable to take time to visit a number of rabbitries for the purpose of studying management practices, equipment used and in seeking information by asking questions before making the initial purchase of breeding stock.

It is a sound policy, too, to deal with a reputable breeder whose rabbits conform with the standards for the breed and to buy young animals.

Marine Corps Needs Recruits

The San Diego Marine Corps Recruiting Office located in Room 212, Post Office Building, 8th and E streets, announce that volunteer enlistments for both men and women are still being accepted. Men and women are being processed for immediate enlistment in the event they are physically, mentally and morally qualified.

Men accepted take their recruit training at the San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot, and the women accepted take their recruit training at Parris Island, South Carolina.

There are no restrictions in regards to marriage or dependency applying to men, except that a man must have less than four dependents. The minimum enlistment period is for three years.

Personnel are needed for all types of jobs. In order to have marines skilled in various trades more than 60 schools are in use — aviation, diesel engines, watch and instrument repair, telephone, telegraphy, baking, cooking, photography, stenography and many others.

Marines are also needed for the ships which are being put back in commission.

The Marines urge all men who are interested in a volunteer service to act imemdiately since the Marine Corps cannot enlist men who have received their notice to report for their preinduction physical examination.

IF YOUR DOG Has Bad Habits

It's easy for a farm dog to develop bad habits. It's almost as easy for you to break them. Here are some pointers on how you can help your dog convince himself that he shouldn't dig holes or suck eggs. The instructions are from the informative Purina Farm Dog Book on how to care for and train the farm dog.

Digging Holes

If Rex is digging out woodchucks somewhere in the back forty, nobody cares very much about it. But, if he persistently digs in Mother's flower bed or in Sister Sue's garden, that calls for action. Locate his favorite digging spot, then put some small mousetraps there, set them and cover them with earth.

Now you might even encourage Rex to do a little bit of digging there. Is he in for a surprise!

After a few bad experiences like that in the flower garden, he will give it up as a bad mining territory and confine his efforts to woodchuck holes.

Sucking Eggs

Sometimes farm dogs develop a taste for fresh eggs and arrange to arrive at the nest before the person with the egg pail. This habit can be cured as follows:

First, locate the nest which the dog likes to rob. Then take an egg, make a small opening on each end and blow out part of its contents. Seal one end with wax aand refill with black pepper or ground horseradish. Now seal the other end, shake well and place several such eggs in the nest.

Since they are sealed with wax, the dog cannot smell the contents. He will try these eggs if all the others have been removed. It needs only a few experiences like that to cure him of nest-robbing for good.

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

"This is the answer of the medical profession to the dwindling resources of our medical schools."

With that, Dr. Donald Cass of Los Angeles, the California Medical Association's blunt-speaking President announced a a contribution of $100,000 from the doctors of California to a national fund to aid the Nation's medical schools.

The money, Dr. Cass pointed out, first to be voted by a major State medical society, will be added to a non-profit foundation established in December by the American Medical Association with a gift of $500,000.

"This is not just a one-shot campaign," Dr. Cass declared. Our Association is joining in a drive to set up collection committees in all counties to encourage individual doctors to make annual contributions to the national fund as a continuing program.

When asked the purpose of the drive, Dr. Cass explained: "The cost of training a doctor has for years been much higher than the schools' tuition. The national campaign will now make it possible for the practicing physician to repay in his earning years the subsidy which his medical school gave him out of endowment or other funds. The medical profession intends to look after itself and not call on government for help."

"Under Supreme Court rulings to the effect that what the Government subsidizes it must control, it is obvious that the federal subsidy now being discussed in Congress would be used to control the medical schools, their system of teaching and their graduates. Medicine wants no part of such control or domination.

"Our contention right along has been that government money is not needed in our medical schools until and unless all private sources of funds have been exhausted.

"The American Medical Association," Cass declared, "took a great step forward in December in setting up a non-profit foundation to collect and distribute funds to needy medical schools for their unrestricted use in training future physicians.' The half million dollar contribution of the A.M.A. was the starting point."

The donation of the California Medical Association, states John Hunton, Executive Secretary, has been approved by CMA county medical societies in all parts of the State. The funds will come out of reserves accumulated from the annual dues of about 11,000 members.

"California doctors, American doctors," Cass said with conviction, "have fought and will continue to fight government in medicine. But our fight is not one of negative opposition. As indicated here, when there is a problem, we will meet it head on—and handle it without calling on Uncle Sam for help."

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAIS

The common early history of most labor unions was a fight with management for establishment, for life and for growth. Unfortunate results of the bitterness that grew out of that background was the tendency of many union leaders to view business prosperity as evil annd the failure to recognize that the employee's economic well-being depended on the success of his firm.

The ingrained habit of "hating the boss" on general principle also made many union men the natural propaganda prey of those who hate the boss as a symbol of the free enterprise system they seek to change. Thus, advocates of socialist projects such as public power, government housing, socialized medicine and nationalization of other professions and industries always claim wide support for their schemes among the unions of the country, and can quote a variety of union leaders to back the claim.

Recently, one such outspoken leader had a rude awakening. Dan W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an A F of L union, has charged the Salt River public power district in Arizona of "using public ownership in an old fashioned campaign of union busting."

The IBEW had a contract with the power district when it was under private management. When the contract expired, the union's demands were refused and it struck. But the new management declared itself an agency of government and secured an injunction forbidding the strike.

Mr. Tracy is indignant over the situation. "It is fantastic," he declares, "to find that the public power program, which had the support of all of organized labor in the past, is now being used to destroy collective bargaining, to break unions, and to keep substandard wages and conditions of labor."

There is nothing fantastic about it at all. When the socializers achieve power, their attitude changes. They are no longer on the make; they are the boss. Private management always has a third factor to consider in its relationships with its employees: the force of public opinion. But socialized management doesn't—as an arm of government, it is public opinion.

Mr. Tracy's rival CIO Utility Workers Union recognized that the year before, when they adopted a resolution condemning public power projects. The CIO union had found by bitter experience that its members had secured better wages and job protection from private utility companies than from government-owned projects such as TVA.

Most labor unions in America are a long ways removed from their early organizational trial; there is less reason for unreasoning bitterness and there is growing evidence that with union members and leaders too, the Utopian tunes of the socializers are proving ever less popular.

Senor Solomon of Cuba Solves Lovers' Problem With Justice

By BILLY ROSE

Last night at Lindy's a bunch of us were making small talk between big mouthfuls, and as per usual the conversation ran the full gamut—from girls to girls.

A little before closing time we got around to a well-known Power's model who had been going steady with a press agent pal of ours, and who was recently lured away from him by the financial blandishments of a well-heeled heel.

"All lady-stealers ought to be buried up to their necks in sand and the ants turned loose," said Mark Barron who covers the theatre for A P

"In Cuba," said Charlie Moses, the film distributor, "they have even more interesting punishments than that for dame-nappers. As a matter of fact, there's one particular story they've been telling for years down there which illustrates how they let the punishment fit the crime."

Billy Rose

"Spare us the puns," I said, "and let's have the story in a few easy paragraphs."

According to Charlie, it all happened a hundred and something years ago when Cuba was under Spanish rule.

ONE DAY AT A fiesta, a scrumptious senorita named Josefina was having herself a time with her boy friend, a prepossessing but peso-less caballero named Roberto, when she caught the lecherous eye of Jose de Cordoba, an old bum of a count who had a large estate outside Havana. The titled bum found out where she lived and made the usual underhanded overtures, but when the senorita informed him that his presence and presents were equally obnoxious, he had her kidnapped and taken to his hacienda.

Roberto had a pretty good idea who was responsible for the snatch but he needed proof, so he disguised himself as a mendicant friar and fast-talked his way into the Count's house. There he struck up an acquaintance with the cook, and when he found that his lady friend was being held under lock and key in a second floor room, he hotfooted it back to Havana.

The Spanish governor-general at the time was one Miguel Tacon, a tough-minded hombre who believed in an eye for an eye and a whole upper plate for a tooth. And when Roberto told him what had happened he ordered his soldiers to arrest the Count and bring him and Josefina to the governmental palace.

AN HOUR LATER, the pretty one and her abductor were brought before him, and after bawling the bejabbers out of the Count he decreed the punishment. The pair were to be married immediately and he himself, would perform the ceremony. Which he did, while poor Roberto looked on plenty bothered and bewildered. Getting hitched to Josefina was not his idea of punishment.

After the nuptials, the Governor-General told the Count he was free to take his bride back to his hacienda. A few minutes out of town, however, a detachment of soldiers, acting on Tacon's orders, ambushed the newlyweds, shot the bridegroom in hot blood and escorted Josefina back to the palace.

"You were legally married to the Count," the Governor told her in his best Solomon manner, "and are therefore his legitimate widow. As such, you are heir to all his worldly goods and possessions, which I understand are considerable. You are also free to marry anyone you wish, and if Roberto still appeals to you I'd be delighted to do the honors."

High School News

The Salesmanship Classes of Grossmont Union High School, are taught by Mr. Barkell, who is also in charge of the Student Exchange at Grossmont. This class lasts for one semester only, and it has been growing steadily ever since it started three years ago.

Mr. Barkell's first class had 11 students and was then called Merchandising. At present, however, the class has 60 students, or two classes a semester and the name has been changed to Salesmanship, which is more the direct meaning of this class.

Mr. Barkell's classes cover two phases each semester—selling yourself and selling merchandise. The classes have the opportunity of working in the local stores during vacations.

A general first aid class is being taught to the public through the Grossmont Adult Education Department in Lemon Grove at the Junior High School. It is a standard 18-hour course which started Tuesday from 3:30 to 5:30, and it will be taught by Harry Gerdes.

William Bruner will instruct a class in Creative Writing from 7:00 to 10:00 starting February 14. All interested should contact John Davis, director of the Adult Education Department, Homeland 6-4155.

e Student Council at Lemon ve Elementary School has been conducting a campaign to improve cafeteria manners. On Friday the fortunate students who contributed most toward the campaign by keeping tables neat and operating for the best interest of all, were awarded for their efforts by a party. It was not just one party, however, for many classes joined to celebrate the good work done by the best tables in several rooms. The cafeteria was colorfully decorated for the occasion. It is hoped that more parties of this nature will be held, thus showing ever-growing improvement in the cafeteria. The staff of the cafeteria is thanked for their help in making the celebration a success. Mr. Grossman is Student Council faculty advisor.

Teachers' Area Meeting

Teachers and principals from the Lemon Grove School District enjoyed a workshop meeting and discussion on the use of maps and map concepts at the school cafeteria on Tuesday evening. The values of newer types of maps now available to schools through the County Service Center was well demonstrated by R. Denno, coordinator of the audio-visual service, and Mrs. Leslie S. Beatty, elementary coordinator, who spoke to the group and later answered questions concerning the material. S. K. Solleder, director of education, introduced the speakers of the evening and presided as chairman during the question and answer period.

March of Dimes assemblies were held for both morning and afternoon students at the Lemon Grove Elementary School on Friday. The audience enjoyed a program presented by students in Mr. Grossman's fifth grade class. Sharon Henderson tap danced for the students, Alex Barron played an accordian solo, Sharan Sanders and Karen van Gilse gave a tap dance, and Mary Felles and Janet Baxter played a clarinet duet.

Mrs. Krimsky had written words appropriate for the occasion to a familiar tune, and as the children marched across the stage to make their contributions to the March of Dimes campaign, they all sang this new song. The children were thrilled to see that they had almost filled the large box used for collecting March of Dimes cards.

Receipts from the morning and afternoon classes together totalled over a hundred dollars.

The second grade, morning section, visited Mrs. Conklin's Bakery Monday. Mr. Hoff explained the process of bread making to the children, from the making of flour to the baked, wrapped loaf, ready for delivery. After they had inspected the many interesting machines and had seen the racks of bread and cakes and large vats of frosting, the students watched a cake being decorated with "Lemon Grove, Second Grade." It was a gift to the boys and girls from the bakery, and all students reported that it was delicious.

Cars and services for the trip were donated by Mrs. Donald Rheaume, Mrs. Gerry Taylor, Mrs. Oliver Spirz, Mrs. Clayton Bauman, Mrs. Charles Lehton, Mrs. Forrest Mottern, and Mrs. Agnes Rodgers, the teacher for the group.

Mr. Purves, Lemon Grove teacher and First Aid instructor, attended a special meeting for First Aid instructors held Saturday, February 3, at San Diego High School. Donald Sloan from the American Red Cross spoke to the group about new methods and presentations. Mr. Purves conducts classes for the community on Monday evening at Lemon Grove School and Thursday evenings at Monterey Heights.

The sixth grade of Mrs. Holmquist's room of Lemon Grove School made a trip to the Van Camp tuna cannery in San Diego last Thursday. The group was also accompanied by room mothers Mrs. K. Layton, Mrs. Mulder, and Mrs. W. Gooch.

The entire process of canning the tuna, from the hold of the fishing boat to the cartons of cans, ready for shipment, was observed by the boys and girls during a conducted tour. They saw the frozen fish removed from the hold and gradually thawed in a series of tanks. After the fish were cleaned and baked, they were cleaned again, cut up, and packed by hand. The sealing of the cans and the labeling of these cans was the most fascinating part of the process to the youngsters.

In the class study of Canada, Alaska, and Mexico, the importance of fishing as an industry is emphasized. The class felt privileged that they were able to visit one of the world's largest canneries and study first hand some aspects of this large industry.

Vista La Mesa School

New Council Officers Elected

The Student Council elections were held at Vista La Mesa School last Wednesday after several days of active campaigning by the candidates seeking office. The final tabulations showed the following results: Leah Conlee was elected president; Alan Rovang, vice president; Fred Sanders, secretary; Mary Conlee, treasurer.

The Prescott Child Study Group, led by Mrs. Emma Tait, was fortunate in hearing Dr. Gerthon Morgan at last week's meeting. Dr. Morgan is a consultant from the University of Maryland. He worked with the group on the specific problem under study at the meeting.

Third Grade Activities

Mrs. Tait's class, the morning third grade is now studying the agriculture and industries of San Diego County. The students are making maps which show the various kinds of food produced near their homes here. They recently welcomed Robert Lembke and Billie Lou Fourthman, new students in the room.

P. E. Play-offs in Jr. High

Play-offs were held in the Junior High physical education classes on Thursday and Friday. In the boys' eighth grade, first place in basketball went to Captain Jim Lindsley, along with Karl Jordan, George Hoover, Jim Pratt, Kip Herring, and Bob Margettes. Monterey Heights School

March of Dimes

The second annual March of Dimes parade was held at Monterey Heights School on Friday under the direction of the Parent-Teacher Association Health Chairman, Mrs. Wm. E. Rife. She reported that $129.10 was collected, a remarkable effort on the part of both students and parents.

EGGS HIGHER THIS SPRING

Higher prices for eggs are anticipated in the spring of 1951 than eggs were demanding in the spring of 1950, according to Farm Advisor Robert H. Adolph. Heavy demand, evidenced by the recent high prices, and a reduction of four per cent of the potential layers on farms, forecast the high prices.

High spring prices and renewed confidence of producers will probably result in a 1951 spring hatch as high or higher than in 1950. This will make the spread between spring and fall egg prices smaller than normal, unless consumer income continues to increase.

Poultry meat prices will probably follow the expected upward trend for prices of red meats. The output of farm raised chickens will probably decrease but may be more than offset by increases in the output of broilers. Although producers will probably be receiving more money for their eggs on their farm, feed prices are expected to be higher in 1951 than they were in 1950. Ample feed supplies are available, but higher demand and rising price levels will raise the cost. Material shortages and rising prices will increase the costs of equipment, repairs, vaccines, and other necessary expenses of production.

WISCONSIN BAR ASSOCIATION OFFERS LEGAL PROTECTION CHEC LIST FOR PROSPECTIVE G.I's

With more and more San Diego County boys likely to enter the military services, many are looking around for a check-off list containing specific suggestions as to what should be done to assure legal protection during an absence. The Wisconsin Bar Association has come up with just such a list. It has already received wide circulation throughout the state and is being picked up throughout the nation.

The list follows:

Power of Attorney—Execute and record, if you want someone to act for you.

Safety Deposit Box—Rent one and collect your important documents.

Will—Prepare and-or revise.

Accounts Receivable — Send statements and arrange for collection or sale of accounts.

Liabilities—Arrange for payment of outstanding bills, loans. Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act protects you against entering of judgments while in service.

Leases—Arrange to cancel or sublet leases on business or residence; provide for getting premises back when you return. If you give proper notice, the SSCR Act saves you from further liability under leases after departure.

Fire Insurance and Personal Property Insurance—Check policies for expiration date, proper coverage and address. Get rebate if you cancel.

Automobile

Automobile Title and Insurance—Be sure they are available and in the name of the proper person.

If your car won't be used for business purposes, you will probably be entitled to a reduced premium.

Leave copies with your wife, attached to your will, etc.

Hospitalization, Surgical, sickness Disability Insurance—Cancel where desirable and request both a pro rata return of premium and right of resumption when you return; if family is to be covered, arrange for reduced premiums and payments.

Job Security—Arrange in writing with your employer or partner for job security and your right to return to employment when your military service is finished.

Notify Draft Board—If under 26 and you are called in reserves.

Absentee Ballots — Determine proper steps and arrange to obtain ballots.

Lodge Membership, Clubs—arrange for suspension of dues, pro rata refund.

Change of Address Card—File with post office; have mail forwarded to some responsible person.

Mortgage and Land Contracts—Arrange with lender for determent of principal payments, if necessary, or otherwise. Check GI Loan provisions and SSR Act.

If you are an attorney, also do these things:

Files and Business—Transfer your active files and accounts to partner or another attorney, arrange basis for handling your work; be sure some person has access to your dead and active files while you are gone.

Notice of Actions—Arrange with the courts and other lawyers to be promptly notified of any actions, decisions or orders which you shou'd know about.

Advise Clients—Notify them of your leaving, and who will handle your work while you are away; advise clients where they may reach you if necessary.

Arrange cancellation of continuing subscriptions if you desire, or change of address.

Bar Associations—Keep your state and local bar associations advised of your whereabouts and duties.

LEADERS ATTEND TRACTOR CLINIC

A one day clinic for 4-H tractor maintenance leaders will be held in Santa Ana on January 29.

The Santa Ana meeting is one of five clinics to be held throughout the State this month. The local leaders will receive an intensive course of instruction on tractor care from Ralph Parks, agricultural engineer for the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

This is the second year that tractor maintenance work has been offered to local 4-H Club members. In 1950, the first year of the program, 935 boys and 2 girls enrolled in 41 counties i California. Dan Close, Farm Advisor, says an increase is expected in 1951.

All club members participating in the program are eligible to try for county medals, the state award of a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, and a national award of a college scholarship. California had one of eight national winners in 1950, Donald Rosedale, of Orange County.

Big Money and Resigning Coaches

By GRANTLAND RICE

AS ANOTHER NEW YEAR slid into view the universities of Minnesota, Southern California, Stanford, Ohio State and a few others were looking for new football coaches. Texas had just completed an exchange for Blair Cherry, retired.

Grantland Rice

Savage alumni pressure, the demand for a winning team, had caused most of this turmoil and just about reached the point of a scandal. It has been generally recognized that football, a great game and a magnificent sport in the raw, had become big business in late years. Big business has overshadowed the sporting side.

"Suppose we take the case of Jeff Cravath at Southern California," a well-known authority out this way said. "Cravath is a fine fellow and he wasn't a bad coach. But Southern California has a big sporting program to support. Football does most of the supporting. Losing teams at Southern California in the last two years had fallen off some $400,000 from other normal years. The fact that Cravath had won four Pacific Coast championships was forgotten. The problem had now become an economic matter. Southern California, being a private institution, couldn't afford another bad year. I mean financially. So Cravath had to go."

Football has reached the point where you must have a winning team or take a financial beating. It has been shown that it costs leading colleges from $250,000 to $275,000 a year to run a football season. A bad year in the field means a bad year or even two at the box office.

The alumni pressure on football coaches has become scandalous. This pressure became so heavy this last fall that Blair Cherry of Texas, Wes Fesler of Ohio State and Marchie Schwartz of Stanford all resigned. Cherry didn't even wait for the end of the campaign. It so happens that all three of these men are excellent sportsmen and on a high level as football coaches. Certainly Cherry and Fesler had two powerful teams, rated 1-2-3 in the national ranking most of the fall. There was no demand for their resignations. They all decided there must be safer ways of making a living.

The Coaching Tangle

Part of the trouble first started when coaches began to jump three- or five-year contracts for better offers. A coaching contract meant very little, but the university always got stung when a contract had to be paid up.

Now universities have tried out the system of signing coaches to 10-year contracts. It remains to be seen how this scheme will work out when better offers are made. At least the universities won't be forced by any alumni group into picking up six or seven years of a long-time contract. Southern California had to pay Jeff Cravath $30,000 to cancel the two years remaining on their agreement.

There are now close to a 100 universities that should be rated on football's big-time list. This number takes in seven or eight big conferences, plus a number of well-known institutions that don't belong to any conference.

Notre Dame is on this latter list. So is Virginia, Miami, Villanova, Santa Clara, St. Mary's, Loyola, Army and Navy. Now it seems to be a reasonable thing to say that all 100 of these universities can't have winning teams. There must be a defeat against every victory. Colleges that set up long winning streaks as a rule do so because they have softer schedules or much better material. And too often getting this material defies any so-called sanity code. This isn't always true. There are exceptions. It may have been rough for them but Notre Dame's bad season and Army's defeat by Navy were very healthy for football. So were Michigan's three defeats.

Coaches complain that experts rate their teams far higher than they belong and then start panning them for bad years. There is a good deal to be said for this complaint.

A New Derby Hope

A year ago the blossoming state of California had a new derby dream. His name was Your Host, a comet-streak sprinter who was picked as the coming Derby and triple crown champion. Your Host was a fine sprinter.

Now Santa Anita has another Derby challenger. After going all out for Your Host the west coast is a trifle more subdued about its new entry—another Alibhai colt known as Gold Capitol.

I can say this—Gold Capitol can run out here. How he will run in Kentucky, Maryland or New York is another story. This new challenger is a son of Alibhai and Pocket Edition.

Although Your Host and Gold Capitol have the same sire, Alibhai, they are different types of runners.

Gold Capitol is willing to wait and do most of his running in the stretch.

SHORT STORY

Faithful Servant

By Maud McCurdy Welch

3-Minute Fiction

TIMES WERE HARD in the little town of Centerville and Sam Meadows, the town's only druggist was finding it hard to meet his bills. The shoe factory was shut down, one of the lumber mills had moved away and the other one was running half time.

Sam was a widower and lived economically in two rooms in the back of his store. He'd cut down on a few other things, but things kept getting worse.

Bill Bowen, one of Sam's good friends, came in one day to talk the situation over. "The trouble with you," he told Sam, "is that you're not business-like. How can you expect to run a business successfully if you don't collect?"

"When people are sick, they have to have medicine whether they can pay for it or not," Sam said reasonably.

"But, Sam, you can't carry the whole town on your shoulders. If you go on extending credit, you'll probably find yourself in a bad spot."

Bill went to the door, turned back with a word of warning. "Better think it over, Sam."

Sam sighed. He looked up at the small neon sign over the entrance doors of which he'd always been so proud.

"Meadews Drug Store
Twenty-five years of service."

Bill Bowen was right. After all a druggist has to take a stand somewhere. He has to protect himself.

Sam's next customer was Mary Neely, a tired looking little woman. Sam knew what she wanted, a prescription re-filled for her brother's neuritis. "It's bothering him awful today," she said.

Mary's husband had had a good job in the shoe factory, but it had been some time since he'd had a steady job.

But Sam had made up his mind. He drew a painful breath. "Mary, you already owe me thirty-five dollars. If you could pay for this prescription maybe . . ." but Sam's voice trailed off unhappily.

Mary's eyes was dazed with surprise. "I haven't any money, but . . ." she broke off. "You mean you . . . you won't let me have the medicine?"

Sam walked to the back of the store, unable to answer. Then suddenly he whirled around. Mary was gone. He hurried after her.

BILL WAS wrong. A man had to have faith. A man has to accept his responsibilities. The health of the people in this town had been entrusted to him. He couldn't fail them, whether they could pay or not.

Sam overtook Mary and said, "Come back. I'll fill the prescription. I'll also put up some Vitamin B for your brother."

"You're a good man, Sam," Mary said tearfully.

After that when people needed credit, they got it. Sam was as usual on call day or night.

Bill Bowen came to see him again. This time Sam told him that a druggist's responsibilities to his customers was as great as that of a doctor to his patients. Bill tried to argue with him, but Sam shook his head with a smile.

Bill went out and almost collided with Tom Shaver, the young cashier

"The trouble with you," Bill told Sam, "is that you're not business-like. How can you expect to run a business successfully if you don't collect?"

in the bank. Sam was filling a prescription for a shabby young man in overalls. He charged it and as the youn man started to leave, Sam gave him a doll for his little girl.

Then Sam said, "Well, Tom, what's on your mind?"

Tom Shaver grinned. "Just wanted you to know the old town's waking up. Shoe factory opens next week, a furniture factory coming in and the mill's going to run full time. There'll be jobs for everybody and the people won't forget you, Sam." Tom went to the door, stopped under the neon sign. "I think I'm going to change that to read, "Twenty-five years of Faithful service."

Sam smiled at him. He was remembering a favorite Bible text:

"For we walk by faith, not by sight."

Tasty Chicken Dishes Enhanced by Proper Use of Seasonings

A FREQUENT meat appearing on menus is chicken because it's versatile and delicate flavor are a favorite with most. Even though you serve chicken frequently, you can have unlimited ways in which it's brought to the table.

High in protein, rich in iron and phosphorus and valuable for it's vitamins, chicken can be served to both adults and children. You may have it in simple frieasee form with dumplings, an old-fashioned favorite, or baked or barbecued, as something special when you entertain.

HERE'S A NEW portrait of a tried and true favorite that you can easily duplicate with this simple recipe:

Chicken Pot Pie
(Serves 6)

- 1 four pound fricassee chicken
- ½ pound salt pork
- Water or stock
- Salt and pepper
- Dumplings

Cut chicken into convenient pieces for serving and dice the pork. Place together in a good-sized saucepan, cover with water or stock and bring to boiling point; cover closely and simmer from one to two hours depending on the age of the chicken, seasoning when about half done. Thirty minutes before serving time put in dumplings and be sure to keep pan closely covered while they are cooking. Arrange meat in center of dish with dumplings around it, pouring gravy over meat.

Dumplings

- 1½ cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons all-phosphate baking powder
- About ½ cup milk

Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Mix thoroughly but quickly with milk and drop by small tablespoonfuls into hot stew gravy. Cover closely and cook 12 to 15 minutes without removing lid from saucepan.

Barbecued Chicken
(Serves 2-4)

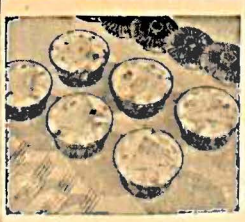
- 1½ to 2½ pound young chicken (broiler)

Barbecue Sauce:

- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 medium onion, chopped fine
- 1 cup tomato puree or catsup
- ½ cup fat
- ½ cup hot water
- ½ cup lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce

Cut chicken in half or in quarters. Arrange in a baking pan. Brush with hot Barbecue Sauce. Cover, then bake in moderate oven (350°) until about half done. Uncover, continue cooking, basting frequently with the hot Barbecue Sauce until tender and nicely browned. Total cooking time: 1 to 1½ hours depending on size and weight of chicken.

Barbecue Sauce: Blend salt, pepper, paprika, and sugar in saucepan. Add onion, tomato puree or catsup, fat and water. Heat to boiling. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice and worcestershire Sauce. Use for basting during cooking, and to serve with the cooked chicken.



Chicken, mushrooms and peas go into these ramekins with a rich cream sauce. Then they're topped with triangles of rich cheese pastry and baked until golden brown to give a colorful, flavor-packed main dish.

LYNN SAYS:
Try Kitchen-Tested Ideas For Meal Appeal

Cabbage, cut fine, and cooked with sour apples and caraway seed makes a good vegetable dish served with spareribs or pork roast.

Squash takes to orange juice as a seasoning. You can mash the pulp, season with the juice and return it to the shells.

Glaze your carrots with sliced oranges, brown sugar and meat drippings. They'll have a spicy, interesting flavor.

Fluffy dumplings and chicken fricassee provide a heart-warming, appetite filling meal for moderate cost. Diced pork adds an interesting flavor touch to the chicken.

Quick and easy is this jellied salad: to one package of lemon-flavored gelatin add one cup of hot grape juice, then 1 cup ginger ale. Chill with mixed fruits if desired.

Heat canned corn, then break eggs, slightly beaten, over the vegetable. Cook gently until eggs are set. Serve for a quick lunch.

Try adding raisins to your hot applesauce a few minutes before it finishes cooking. They'll be plump and flavorful, then serve over toast triangles.

Grapefruit makes a good meat garnish or dessert if you spoon apple mint or currant jelly over it before broiling.

Blanc mange made with a bit of coconut, then poured into small molds to chill makes a pretty dessert when unmolded and served with raspberry sauce and thin butter cookies.

Iceland Cattle Malady

A disease that kills without warning is running up a heavy toll in cattle herds of Iceland. It is called "bradadaudi" and strikes most often during the spring and summer. Heaviest losses occur after severe physical strain, the animals falling dead without showing signs of illness. Veterinarians are investigating the disease, but as yet have found no clue to its cause.

Piscatorial Painting

Taxidermists use paint to impart a lifelike appearance to mounted fish. According to the Smithsonian Institute, shellac is used over the colored paints. Sometimes a pearl essence finish is applied to the underside of the fish. Pearl essence is a substance generally derived from fish scales and combined with a transparent vehicle such as lacquer or varnish.

Files Ancient Tools

Though files were used 3,000 years ago, they were laboriously cut by hand until 1750 and the first really successful file cutting machine was perfected by James Naamythe of England in 1840. Today, there are more than 5,000 different kinds and cuts of files, including rotary files, and rasps.

Tree Vitamins

A trace of iron, boron, zinc or manganese is as essential to the health of a tree as vitamins are to a human being. If these elements are deficient in the soil, a tree's life processes begin to slow down. One of the first manifestations is chlorosis, a yellowing of the leaves between the veins due to non-formation of the green pigment called chlorophyl.

Finishing Knotty Pine

To finish knotty pine, give it a thin coat or two of white shellac or lacquer sealer. Follow that with one or two coats of flat or semi-gloss varnish. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly. Sand all coats lightly except the final one. If a lighter color is desired, use a commercial bleach before you apply your clear coatings.

Chicken Blue Ribbon

Chickens that have been in egg-laying contests or on exhibit at poultry shows sometimes bring home Newcastle disease, as well as other contagious ailments, along with their blue ribbons. Outbreaks in formerly healthy flocks also have been linked with the introduction of infected baby chicks.

Cloth Bear

The fat of the cloth bear is highly prized by the natives of the mountainous parts of India for the lubrication of delicate steel parts used in gunlocks. It prevents rust and will not clog with constant use.

Auction in Reverse

A Dutch auction is one in which the auctioneer offers the goods at gradually decreasing prices, the first bidder to accept, being the purchaser. This is a reverse process to that of an ordinary auction.

MUTT AND JEFF

YOU SEE, BOSS, YOU SAY OUT OF 1,500 MEN IN THE FACTORY ABOUT TEN PER CENT COME LATE!
WELL, HOW WILL YOUR PLAN SAVE US MONEY?
WELL, IF 150 MEN COME LATE TEN MINUTES EVERY MORNING, THAT MEANS A LOSS OF 1,500 MINUTES DAILY!
THAT'S TWENTY-FIVE HOURS A DAY OR 150 HOURS A WEEK!
AT ONE DOLLAR AN HOUR THAT'S A LOSS OF $8,025 A YEAR!
BY JOVE! I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT! BUT HOW CAN WE KEEP THE MEN FROM BEING LATE?
SIMPLE-- THE LAST MAN IN BLOWS THE WHISTLE!- PROBABLY ME!

SMALL BUSINESS
by WILSON HATCH

Many government officials say present national inflation is caused, in part, by too much money being in circulation. But another set of officials took a different action to solve Norway's inflation, according to ECA Bulletin #1956.

Marshall Plan gives Norway $110 million to "combat inflationary pressures resulting from the excessive amount of money pumped into the nation's economy during the war." In other countries American taxpayers' dollars have been given to fight deflation.

C. W. Harder

"It is hoped," observers remark, "that if any city is bombed defense officials will agree.

* * *

"Otherwise some will order water poured on the blaze; others will order gasoline pumped on the flames."

* * *

"I shall expect the Federal Trade Commission to be alert and vigorous in its enforcement." Pres. Truman signing the anti-merger bill designed to plug a gap in anti-trust laws.

But, small business leaders ask, will this mean just more "lip service," as Wendell Berge, former head of the Dept. of Justice Anti-Trust Division, labelled anti-trust enforcement for the past 15 years before a Congressional committee.

Anti-trust laws enforcement protecting the public is the responsibility of the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission. There is great concern over the work of the FTC.

Congress has never, despite requests from organized small business, given the FTC enough money to do a job. During the present session, organized small business will again urge Congress to act.

Simultaneously, Congress will also scrutinize the entire FTC organization to see if the money will be properly spent, as a horse led to water cannot be made to drink. This probe has already started. A report just released by the House Small Business Committee spotlights glaring deficiencies in the FTC.

* * *

The report states internal strife and office politics pervade the agency. The report also refers to a "premium placed on inter-office deals, strategic alliances," etc. Investigating Congressmen also found that the FTC is split into small cliques with every division jealous of any powers given any other division.

The House Small Business Committee also accuses the FTC of jumping on a horse and galloping off in all directions.

Investigators found the FTC failed to follow up on cases. Why? Congressmen are determined to find out. Next week there'll be more facts.

Everybody knows small newspapers are plagued with a shortage of newsprint, also exhorbitant newsprint prices.

That is, everyone knows except apparently Marshall Plan officials, who have given $1 million worth of newsprint to Ireland, or the equivalent of a year's supply for 1,000 substantial American weekly newspapers.

Pedestrians to Use Cross Walk

The 35-mile speed limit on Broadway was mentioned and Mr. Offenbecher stated that in order to have the speed reduced to 25 miles it would be necessary grading and connection of the fire station ramp.

to prove that the business district was at least 600 feet in length and that at least 50% of the property on each side of the street was used exclusively for business purposes. Even then, the State Highway representative might recommend that the limit remain 35 miles.

In answer to the ever-present question of traffic signals at Broadway, Main and Imperial, Mr. Offenbecher reminded the Board that the state has full jurisdiction over all streets entering and leaving a State highway and that signals in the center of the Lemon Grove district would be erected only on a priority of need basis, to be determined by the State Highway office. At last inquiry, Lemon Grove was about 18th on the list and quite possibly farther by now.

Different types of signals were discussed. Mr. Offenbecher is not in favor of center signals from a safety viewpoint. Because of the railway, signals would have to be automatically adjusted in a similar fashion to those in San Diego where the highway crosses the tracks.

Fire Commissioner Monell reported that the fire station should be completed by March 1, that the 500 gallon pumper truck will be on hand by that date, and that the larger unit will be received about July 1, ownership certificates having been received for both units. Fire station personnel will also be ready by March 1.
